TRAINS TAKE FIRE ROY TELLS HOW AFTER CRASH AT BARTON STATION

Caboose Demolished in Col- Acted in Self-Defense, Family lision, One Man Killed, Another Missing.

SIGNAL FAILS TO WORK. PARIS, Feb. 26.—Paul Roy, who is Useless to Avoid Rear-End Smash in Cut.

Owing to the failure of Charles Deenal, two freight trains crashed together in a rear-end collision near the Bartow station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, early to-day, and Deenier, who was in the caboose, was killed.

Walter Davis, of Springfield, a fireman, and another fireman named Messner were injured, but not seriously, Leonard Boat, of Hartford, the engineer of the second train, remained in his cab until the last minute and only saved his life by jumping.

The accident occurred at Rock Cut Bridge and passenger traffic was de-layed for two hours. The first train was composed of twenty-five cars. It left for New Rochelle and was followed by the second, which had fortyfive heavily loaded cars.

freight track an hour and it was Dee- Mr. Carkins in excited conversation The first train was stalled on the nier's duty to run down the track and give his engineer the signal. He remained in the caboose.

Engineer Boat, on the second train, was coming around the Pelham Manor turn and could not see the train stalled ahead. Owing to the isolation of the spot and the fact that the City Island police station and Fordham Hospital are two and six miles distant respectively, physicians and the police did not reach the cut until two hours after the coland when they left the Willis avenue yard rolled on separate tracks until, as is the custom, they turned on a siding own as the freight track, in order to make way for a passenger train.

at moderate speed, the engineer thinking that he could control his brakes.

The grade at the Rock Cut Bridge, however, is quite steep, and rain and snow had made the tracks so slipper that the brakes were powerless to prevent the engine and the long line of heavily loaded freight cars from rolling on faster and faster until the train attained high speed.

The engine of the last train crashed into the caboose of the first. The caboose was smashed and splintered so that fragments of wood and the furniture were thrown in all directions, much of the debris flying on to the station.

The engine was almost demolished and a fire began at once. The caboose, or what remained of it, was in a blaze in a few, seconds, and it was due to quick work that the other cars of both trains did not also catch fire.

Agent Mindel, of the Bartow statin, trains did not also catch fire.

Agent Mindel, of the Bartow stat. n, heard the concussion and did everything possible to prevent the station from burning.

Conductor Louis Hagenor, of the first train, who was missed immediately after the accident and who, it was feared, had been killed in the demolition of the caboose, was found uninjured. He was some distance down the track when the collision occurred.

Alleles, the Word family tried desper ately, but unsuccessfully, to prevent the marriage of their mother, who was about to enter a private hospital. The father of the accused man is named Auguste Roy. He is a prominent merchant, and lives at Neuilly, Miss Carkins lived in Paris several years ago with her aunt, the Baroness Von Orendorff. She was at one time engaged to Count de Beynac. Her talent, wealth and beauty gained her admission to exclusive circles. She finally rented a villa at Etretat and subsequently met Faul Roy.

Minard's Liniment Mfg. Co., Dear Sirs-Your Minard's Liniment received and was used to good advantage, and I wish I had used it cooner, as it would have saved me lots of pain and also lots of money. With the first application I was able to lie out straight in bed—what I had not done in seven weeks— as I had been forced to sit on the side of the bed with my feet resting on the floor. Have used three bottles of your liniment, and it has loosened the cords so that I can sleep nights. I was able to go to work this week, and the rheumatism has not bothered me any, only on damp days in the mornings, but will soon work that off. Am a longshoreman, loading and unloading foreign ships, and have recommended Minard's Liniment to several of my fellow workmen that have the same trouble with stiff joints. The other liniments f used did not seem to take the stiffness out of the cords. Yours truly,

Final Reduction Sale Furs

OUR fur business has been going with a rush the last few days—prices were never so low—and we anticipate that it will be many a year before you see furs priced so low again. At these final reduction prices it will pay you to buy for an investment. If low prices will move our fur stock we do not intend to carry a single garment over.
